I really enjoyed this course: it was very much in-depth. We covered a wide range of topics and provoked many thoughts of ten bases of mathematics in general. The book was adequate but I needed to do some research outside of class to understand the course content. Dr. Ross is an excellent professor - he knows the topics very well and can convey the topics thoroughly.

Everything is fine.

Lecture is good, but better if the material written on board is more organized.

Textbook is not good, to read it is OK, but it doesn't help in understanding the subject.

The course is more involved than I think, going beyond my point of interest. Perhaps I should think twice before taking this.

We covered all the material in the text^{on 2F(c)}, plus several graduate-level digressions. Course content seemed reasonable; ~~the~~ exercises covered the salient points of the course work. Pace was quick but not impossible to keep up with. I'm satisfied ~~that~~ overall and believe that we've covered enough to make me competent in this field.
